Dr. Royal S Copeland, Health Com-

Dr. Royal S Copeland, Health Commissioner, testified before the Senate Committee on Reconstruction and Production, that "a housing situation has arisen in New York which is both immoral and a menace to the lives and the health of the people."

Mr. Hilly announced that under the new rent laws persons who signed leases on or since April 1 last and who object to paying increases provided for in the leases have the right to offer rent on the old basis on October 1, and if the landlord refuses it they may "sit tight" until the courts decide on the reasonableness of the threatened increase.

Edward P. Doyle, a member of the executive committee of the Real Estate Board, deciared that the board in preparing to test the constitutionality of the new rent laws would contend that the laws are "outrageous" and designed not for the poor, but for "the benefit of rich tenants who have long leases about to expire."

Landlords who increased rentals 100 per cent in the last two years were profiteers, and responsible therefore for the enactment of rent laws now so distasteful to them, Senator William M. # Balancing a Kyak

The Kyak is made entirely of skins shaped over a frame like a miniature submarine. Only the deck shows above the water line. Though a kyak turns over easily an Eskimo paddler doesn't hesitate to take a passenger though the latter is obliged to crawl inside the hollow shell and remain there under water level. The picture shows an Eskimo father teaching his boy the first principles of balancing this cranky craft.
